David is a Senior Director within the Investment Advisory team of CBRE Capital Advisors. David has more than 18 years of property market experience in the UK, Japan, Australia and the US.

At CBRE David is involved in projects focusing on real estate investment strategy and indirect investment implementation.

Prior to joining CBRE, David was a Managing Director for 7 years with a Japanese private real estate fund manager. During this time, David was involved in the strategy development, capital raising and management of more than US$3bn of indirect real estate funds.

Before relocating to Japan, David worked at Macquarie Bank in Australia for over 10 years; initially with the Treasury & Commodities Group then the Real Estate Funds Group. In the T&C Group, David advised clients on the management of financial risks; interest rates, foreign exchange and commodity price risk. The Real Estate Funds Group managed more than A$30bn of real estate assets around the world. David initially worked on fund strategy and financial risk management across all Macquarie vehicles. Thereafter, David was CEO of A$2.2bn ASX listed REIT which owned shopping centres located in the US.

David started his career with St Qunitin Chartered Surveyors in London (a predecessor firm of CBRE) and then spent 3 years with Andersen Consulting (now Accenture) in its Strategic Consulting Practice working in the Financial Services group in Sydney.

David is a member of the IPF's Special Interest Group on International Property Investment and was previously a member of an ANREV Committee on Index Development.

David has a BA in Land Economy from Cambridge University (UK) and Bachelor of Agricultural Economics degree from Sydney University (Australia).
