Experience & Qualifications

Paul has over 25 years' experience in strategic project management. He is a fellow of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors and holds an MSc in Project Management from the University of Reading. He began his career as a quantity surveyor and worked for a number of national practices before moving into project management in the mid 90's.

In 2002 Paul co-founded Provelio, a strategic project management consultancy that aims to ensure clients get the most from their buildings, people and technology. Provelio advise on strategic management, capital investment, cost reduction and rationalisation, change management and procurement in both the public and private sectors.

Paul has delivered programmes and projects throughout the UK across the commercial, residential, education, health, utilities, transport, government and defence sectors. Since forming Provelio he has managed a number of high profile, industry leading initiatives including the stabilisation of Combe Down Stone Mines for Bath and North East Somerset Council and the Military Capability Output Costing for the Ministry of Defence.

Paul has authored numerous national best practice guides including Guide to the Realisation of Strategic Change and Benefits: A challenge to current thinking and practice, in conjunction with HEFCE and The Stabilisation of Combe Down Stone Mines: Good Practice Guide. He has also written papers for the wider industry such as From Uncertainty to Certainty; How Clients can Improve their Experience of the Construction Project. He is a Board Member for Constructing Excellence South West, an AUDE speaker for the Strategic Thinking for Estates Masterclass and regularly lectures on project management, procurement and other industry related topics.
